

MASSIVELY SUCCESSFUL TRAIN CONDUCTOR 2: USA ARRIVES ON ANDROID

Features double the content of the iOS version with an exclusive play mode and level

MELBOURNE, Australia – November 17th, 2011 – The Voxel Agents today announced that the second entry in their hugely successful Train Conductor series will arrive on Android early December. Android gamers are being rewarded for the wait for Train Conductor 2: USA with an exclusive play mode and level, delivering double the content of the iOS version.

Five million people worldwide are already enjoying the Train Conductor series on iOS platforms. Now Android users will be able to join them on an epic train-delivering adventure that takes the player on a journey across the USA.

Far from a simulation, Train Conductor is all about quick strategic decisions and superior hand-eye coordination as players guide locomotives across the horizontal tracks while avoiding head-on collisions with other trains. Each of the nine cities in the game - from Miami to Seattle - present the player with unique challenges.

Developers, The Voxel Agents have added an entirely new mode of play to the game, exclusive to Android. Challenge Mode pits your skills against friends and strangers in a weekly contest. Every level in the game has custom content for Challenge Mode, more than doubling the size of the game.

Other exclusive content in the Android version includes special “gold trains” that unlock gameplay rewards, a high scoring “Droid” train, and a new city, Chicago.

“We've always wanted to bring Train Conductor to Android but we didn't want to just port the game as it was,” said Simon Joslin, Creative Director at The Voxel Agents. “It was important for us to really bring the love to the platform and put as much exclusive content in as possible. With double the size, Train Conductor 2 will be a must have game on Android.”

Train Conductor 2: USA will launch on Android early December, 2011 with a price of US $1.99.

A free lite version will also launch on the same date.
